WAR SHOCK WANES CHILE'S TRADE

Great Activity Now Marks Nearly All Lines of Business in the Republic.

ONLY IMPORTS FALL OFF

But Decrease Results in Increased Manufacturing and Less Debt.

C. R. Edwards of the banking house of L. Edwards & Co., Valparaiso, Chile, has sent the following statement regarding business and finance in Chile to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York:

"The serious effects that followed the outbreak of the European war are no longer felt in Chile, and the great sources of national wealth have regained their former strength and activity.

"Agriculture has received a powerful impetus, owing to the increased demand and the prevailing high prices for all agricultural products. Manufacturing has increased. Mining has entered upon a new era of development through the establishment of great plants to exploit the immense deposits of copper, iron and other minerals which are found in this country.

"The production of nitrate of soda is unprecedentedly great. All these factors have combined to give an unusual impetus to the exports of Chilean products.

"The only element in the economic situation which has suffered a serious setback is the foreign trade, which has not yet recovered in the business of importing, which has been reduced approximately 50 per cent. through the curbing of the import of raw materials and the price of raw materials and in general to the consequences of the state of war in all the great productive countries of the world.

"But even though the situation has seriously affected one of the branches of the country's activity, it should be recognized that the curtailing of imports has been of distinct benefit. It has increased the manufacturing industry, and has brought about the liquidation of the greater part of the large debt which weighed heavily upon the country and which was piled up as a result of methods pursued by importers.

"This system, by which important foreign houses forced local dealers to overbuy, on credit, at excessively high rates, was, before the war, a cause of great anxiety on the part of those interested in the future of the country.

"With the gradual disappearance of the financial depression which existed during the first years of the war, with the increase in exports and with the introduction of new capital from abroad by which important mining enterprises were encouraged, the equilibrium of the country has been reestablished and the financial situation is noticeably improved particularly so far as foreign trade is concerned.
